LOWEST NEW SCHOOL BIDS JUST UNDER TOWN'S PRICE

The lowest price bid, last Thursday, when bids were opened for the construction of the new Salem Street Intermediate School, just about exactly takes every cent that the town appropriated, in its special town meeting last fall.

The Leonard Rugo Inc. firm of Wellesley Hills bid a price of $828,000, for construction, which, with site preparation, equipment, and other costs, brings the estimated total to $1,054,000.

$1,050,000 was appropriated by the town, after the Finance Committee had reduced the recommended figure by $50,000. Also available is the sum of $7,500, in planning money still in the Building Committee's hands, bringing the total available to $1,057,500.

John Valtz, of the firm of Valtz & Kimberly, architects, told the Permanent Building Committee that the prices bid were just as he had predicted.

There will be no rooms for any extras, or change of orders, as a result of the bids. Many schools average a dozen 'change orders' during their ordinary course of construction.

Valtz asked the Permanent Building Committee what it wanted to do about a fence around the school (cost, est. at $12,000). He was told there would be no fence.

Cowie House

One factor, not in the control of the Building Committee which can send the costs over the slim margin available, can be the cost of providing a home for the Robert G. Cowie family, of Ballardvale St.

Their 80 year old home stands on the school grounds, by vote of the town last fall, and the Board of Selectmen were authorized by the town to enter into an agreement with the Cowie family to move the home to another site, to be provided by the town, on Ballardvale St. Attorney William Sullivan of Wakefield told Selectmen John Brooks and Nicholas De Felice, Thursday night, that the costs of moving were much higher than was expected.

Sullivan cited costs of over $14,000, for moving the home. The home would have to be cut into three parts, new wiring and new plumbing would have to be installed, to meet the town codes, and other factors would add to the costs, he told the Selectmen.

Mr. De Felice felt it would be cheaper to build a new home and burn the old one, and a tentative agreement was made that the town, subject to a vote by the town, would build a six room home, three bedrooms, full cellar, two car garage and breezeway, for the Cowie family.

De Felice felt that this might cost $12,000. The money would come from the funds for the building of the new school. The 80 year old Cowie home was the home of John Regan, World War I Hero, for whom Regan Park in No. Wilmington, was named. Regan was lost, in 1917, when the US Destroyer Jacob Jones was torpedoed, in the North Sea.

PONY LEAGUE TRYOUTS SATURDAY & SUNDAY

Tryouts for the Wilmington Pony League are to be held at the High School baseball diamond, Saturday and Sunday, Manager Bob Hastings has announced. Starting time will be at 2 pm on each day.

All boys will be required to bring a glove, and to attend both sessions. Last year's members who are still eligible to participate must also attend the tryouts - the fact that they were members of last year's team does not guarantee them membership this year.

To be eligible, a boy must have reached his thirteenth birthday before August 1, 1961. The 1960 team, after a slow start, caught fire about mid-June, and raced to a third place finish in the eight team league, which includes three Stoneham and four Reading teams.

READ AND REMEMBERED

Madison Ave USA is a small section of New York City, inhabited by faceless grey-flanneled legions, who are popularly believed to be the dictators and arbitors of all that is Advertising, in the USA. Television programs, radio, daily newspapers, billboards, magazines, sky-writing, and perhaps soon rocket advertising, are all the property of Madison Avenue, and the executives of our great corporations bow their knee accordingly.

Yet, how many of these executives must have their momentary pangs of doubt, - as for instance when an executive who has placed millions in a TV program catches himself turning down his own TV set when the commercial starts, or another who stops and reflects after he has just thrown his daily newspaper in the wastebasket.

The millions of dollars spent annually via Madison Avenue may or may not achieve their purpose, and, all slide rules to the contrary, corporation executives are entitled to their doubts.

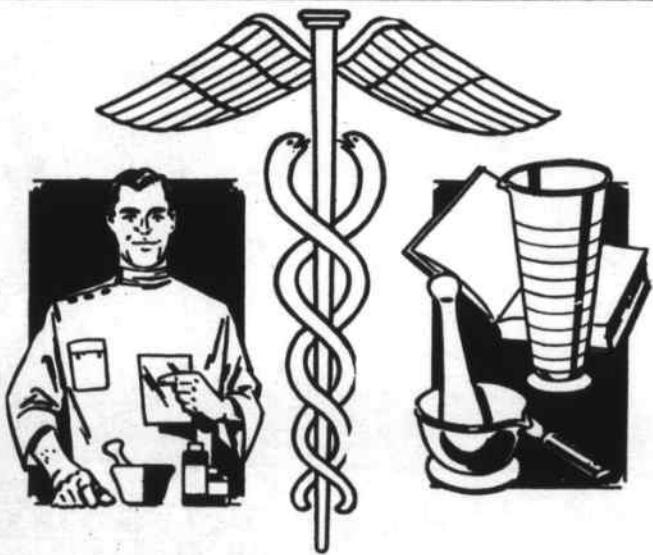

Largely overlooked, in these United States, are the weekly newspapers, the type that the small town man buys and takes home on a Thursday and which still remains in his home next Monday, or even next Thursday, because everyone has to see it, and read every word.

Two different executives have recently realized this, each coming to their conclusion in their own way.

One lives right here in Wilmington. He is a junior member of a firm, and was present at the Board of Directors meeting of the Chamber of Commerce meeting, recently. He spoke against a proposal, saying in effect that the proposal would have trouble because of the way a certain law was written. He had read it somewhere - he just didn't remember where, or when.

That gentleman had read the item about which he was speaking, and which he recalled, two years previously, and in the Town Crier, for only the Town Crier had reported on the phase of the law of which he was speaking.

The other executive is the president of the Old Mr Boston corporation, and he lives in Plainville, Conn. He realized, one evening, that he had just read every word of the local weekly paper - every word including the classified advertisements - something that is just about par for many weekly newspapers. He further realized that he wasn't alone in his family in completely reading the local paper.

Now he is about to embark on a advertising program that is not laid out by Madison Ave. It will be advertising only in reputable weekly newspapers.

Perhaps he will not notice any immediate change, but there will be long range effects, that will show up in time, for him, just as they did for that junior executive in Wilmington.

There are difficulties to be faced. The weekly papers are not so finely adjusted as are the media that Madison Avenue uses, and Madison Avenue knows this. Perhaps the President of Old Mr. Boston will have his troubles.

But he will be advertising in the best read of all of America's publications, the weekly newspaper that is remembered, in its own town, for years afterwards.

AN OPEN LETTER TO WILMINGTON PARENTS

The construction of the School Bus Shelters in Wilmington was done at the suggestion of John Collins, our past Superintendent of Schools with the blessings of the Town Fathers and the School Committee.

Funds were solicited from the Wilmington business community. The construction was by members of the JCs, in their spare time. It may have been somewhat amateurish, but it improved as we went along. Insurance was obtained to protect both the children and their parents.

In the past seven months we have received several laudatory letters and thank you notes from various mothers in the community.

However, it is quite apparent in several areas of this town that pill-boxes would have been more appropriate than bus-shelters, and that we in the JCs should have utilized some of the more professional construction experience of members who had served in the Korean War and World War II.

To those parents who have conscientiously aided in maintaining these shelters, our sincere thanks. To those parents who have stood by and watched these shelters being destroyed by their children - our condolences.

TOWN NOTES

Floods

A combination of rain last weekend, plus a little each day, plus the melting of snow has brought Wilmington to nearly a flood stage.

The water was only 10 inches below the level of Wildwood St. last Sunday, the highest in several years, and the Hundred Acre Meadow was practically a lake.

Fishing, on the opening day was a flop, according to most accounts. Up to 9 am there were no reported catches.

Put Sunday, when the boys stayed home because of the rain, some of the men went out and got a creelful. Trout were caught (a few) in Lubbers Brook, near Salem Street, and a few more, (by men in boats) on the Ipswich.

Monday night saw residents of Clark Street protesting to the Board of Health because cellars were flooded. Public Health Officer Pat Thibreau, after some investigation, decided that the culvert under the Wildcat branch of the R.R. was the culprit.

Good Indigo

Arthur Allgrove, who just loves wild things, has a snake in his office on Woburn Street which should inspire terror, but is actually quite harmless.

It is an Indigo, from Florida and tops 6 1/2 feet in length. We have seen Arthur drape it around his shoulders, which pleasure, says we, he can have for himself.

The Salem St School

Two more or less newsworthy items concerning the building of the Salem Street School:

A local firm, an affiliate of J. J. Cronin, was the highest in bids, for site preparation. Either Cronin did not want the job, or perhaps it knew the local situation better. It bid about $50,000 more than did the lowest in price.

The architect reported a total of 72 complete sets of plans having to be made, for firms that wished to bid - a new high, he said. Each set costs about $20.

Blowing Up the Dam

In connection with the current changes planned by the Middlesex County Bank we are reminded of some of the old days of Wilmington - when Mrs. Hiller's cranberry bog (now Rotary Park) was flooded every winter by the boys, to ensure good skating.

Mrs. Hiller had diverted the Mill Brook that flows by Doc. Pagan's house, so as to flood her bog. Sidney Buck, who lived where Al Lynch now lives didn't like the idea, because when there was skating he frequently had a flooded cellar - the water having a very poor run off from Mrs. Hiller's bog.

Sidney built a dam across the brook, and guarded it zealously. Not only that he engaged the services of genial Chief of Police Walter A. Hill (who lived where Weinberg's store is now), as a volunteer assistant.

So every winter, if the boys wanted to skate they had to divert both Sidney and the Chief for the several hours it took to flood the bog. It was not always easy.

One winter, sometime before World War I, somebody got a stick of dynamite - we don't know who - and thereby hangs a tale.

About a week before Christmas three or four young fellows engaged the Chief in a conversation, outside Hudson's drug store in Wilmington Square.

After about half an hour the group heard a loud noise, and of course it had to be investigated.

Immediately the suggestion was made that someone's house boiler had blown up - and some one else said it sounded as though it were in back of the Methodist Church.

So Chief Bill and his several volunteer assistants went down to Beacon Street and Fairview Avenue, waking up sleepy house holders to ask them if their boiler had blown up.

They couldn't find why - so they went further afield. The Chief might have marveled at the diligence of his assistants - but he didn't say anything, and as long as he was willing so were the boys, - even if the people didn't appreciate the humor of the situation.

Finally about 11 pm, at the far end of Fairview Ave the Chief decided to call it a night. Naturally the boys beat it - they didn't want to walk home with the Chief for they knew what he would see when he got to the Cranberry Bog. They went one way - and the Chief another.

The Chief, it is related, got up to Sidney Buck's about 11:30 pm., just in time to help put in the last few shovels of dirt to remake the dam - but the bog was flooded by that time, and there was plenty of skating that winter.

reason that rates here never were unreasonably high, and the reductions now in effect here are solely in response to economic and competitive forces."

The article concludes by saying: "Prices for the better buys in the field of used houses may rise a bit under early Spring influences, but we believe they will, in the final analysis, stabilize pretty much at present levels. More apartment and other rental housing construction is definitely in prospect for early Spring."

National regulations of the Little League allows a total of 15 players on any major league team. It will be expected that there will be a good deal of 'cutting' until

FAMED 'MONEY BUILDING' SUBJECT TO APPEAL BOARD HEARING

The old Alanson Jaquith building - known until recently as the home of the late Susan T. Esler, on the corner of Clark and Main Street, was the subject of a Board of Appeals hearing, Tuesday night, when the present owner, Minor Haskell, presented arguments for replacing it with a new office building.

Haskell wants to build an office building about 40 by 74 feet in size, single story. The lot is about 88 by 146 feet, in a Single Residence Zone (SRA).

Alanson Jaquith, a member of one of the oldest families in Wilmington, committed suicide in a barn that stood where the adjoining gas station now stands - back about 1885. Before he hung himself he was reported to have drawn about $5000 from a Boston bank, and then either to have destroyed the money, or hidden it.

Many have searched for the money, but it has never been found. There were old-timers living until a few years ago who declared that Janse Jaquith didn't have any money to draw from any bank, and that the story was a hoax, but, hoax or not it was believed by many people.

Haskell's proposal was opposed by Joseph Slater, representing the Wilmington Planning Board, who said that there would be parking problems, and that many school busses use the street.

Mrs Carl Melander, next door neighbor also opposed, but only from a water drainage angle. She declared that her cellar is flooded, that the sump pump is unable to take care of the present problem, and that she was afraid that the hot-topping, a requisite of parking, in the adjacent lot would add to her problems. If the water could be taken care of, she said, she would have no opposition.

Another neighbor, Mrs George Richardson, declared that the 45 children in the neighborhood would be endangered.

Haskell told the Board that he would do everything in his power to take care of water drainage problems, and pointed out that there is no problem on his lot of land. He inferred that the problem is one of proper dredging of Mill Brook, about 300 feet distant.

The Board took the appeal under advisement, to give a decision later.

AIR FORCE ACCEPTING PILOT APPLICATIONS

The U. S. Air Force through its Officer Training School Program, is currently accepting applications for pilot training, it was disclosed by Sergeants Clifton H. Stickney and Richard E. Harriman, of the local USAF Office at 89 Appleton Street, Lowell.

The pilot training program is open to college graduates who are 20½ to 26½ years of age. According to the Sergeants there are a number of advantages to be gained by entering flying training through the new OTS program.

Selected applicants travel to Texas for training. During the 3 month precommission course they receive the pay and allowances of a Staff Sergeant. Immediately upon graduation they are commissioned as Second Lieutenants, with a monthly salary of $338, and receive the pay, prestige and full allowances of an Air Force officer while in pilot training.

Of special note to college seniors, the Sergeants noted, is that an individual within 135 days of graduation may apply for this program.

Complete information concerning pilot training through the Officer Training Program may be obtained locally at 89 Appleton Street, Lowell.

TM WANTS TO CONVERT SALEM - LOWELL RR TO HIGHWAY

The old Salem Lowell Railroad bed, abandoned since 1921, would be converted into a road way into the recently rezoned area in North Wilmington, according to a proposal made by Town Manager Cecil Lancaster, Monday night, and approved by the Selectmen.

Lancaster proposed that the town convert the roadbed from Woburn Street to a point near the new Route 125 ramp. The old right-of-way is 82 feet wide, of solid material (mostly packed cinders) and could be made into a useable highway at little cost, according to the TM.

His proposals were further extended by Selectman Charles Flack, who proposed that the road be continued easterly to Salem Street, at Martin's Brook. Flack pointed out that truck traffic would then be diverted out of a residential area.

Flack's proposals were taken up by Selectman De Felice, who proposed that the town take by eminent domain the rest of the old roadbed, to the North Reading line. He told the Board that the town could then prevent gravel trucks and others from entering the old Van Steensburg pit, now owned by Steve Hathaway, gravel merchant.

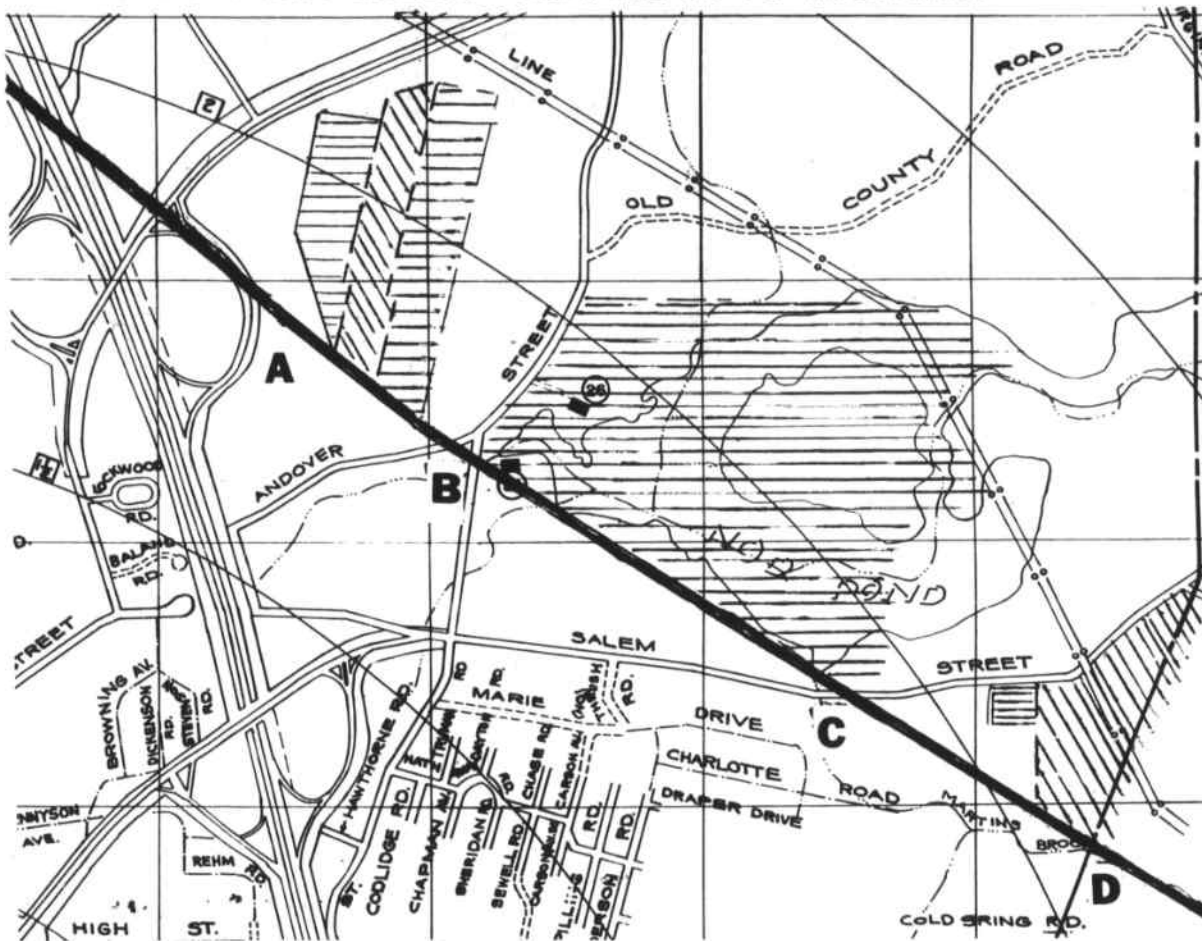

Water Extensions

Lancaster also pointed out that water mains could be laid on 'his' portion, under the Betterment Act, to be paid for by abutters. The water mains, he admitted, would cost more in proportion than would the roadway itself.

On the portion where the road would abut town owned property the betterment would not revert to other owners, but he paid by the town, he said.

Selectman De Felice proposed that Arthur Williams and Henry Jensen, both of Andover St. and both already served by town water be 'excluded' from betterments on the new road. His remark was seconded in a fashion by Chairman John Brooks, who said that he was 'on record publicly that I don't think anyone should pay twice on a corner lot'.

Selectman Kidder pointed out that the town has 'never given Selectman Black wants to extend it to C, and Selectman De Felice would buy through to D, and close off the C - D section.

a full abatement'.

To Serve Insultab

The new roadway, as proposed by the TM, would serve the Insultab company, which is planning to buy land in the area. Lancaster told the Selectmen that Insultab would give land to the town for the portion of the new road that would effect their area.

Lot News to Some

While the TM first made the proposal public on Monday it's possibility has been the subject of some discussion by people ever since the land was rezoned last winter.

It will be impossible, according to the way the discussions have run, for Insultab to get a building permit unless they are on a highway.

Some real estate operators have been watching to see if the town would build a highway or propose to, for they have expressed opinions that in such a case the town could build highways into other private lands (for their real estate purposes).

STATE AID BILL PASSED IN 1960

An act providing state aid for free public libraries was approved November 3, 1960. The act provided for a direct grant in aid on a per capita basis to eligible libraries. The act also provided for establishment of a comprehensive state-wide program of regional public library service, consisting of regional public library systems, which shall not exceed five.

Monday, April 10, librarians from all communities in the Northeast Region attended a meeting at Memorial Hall Library in Andover. An advisory council was formed, by-laws approved, and officers elected. Mrs. Dorothy Haywood, Chief Librarian of Lynn, was elected chairman.

Wilmington and three other borderline towns will be able to choose whether they wish to be in the Northeast region or the Metropolitan Boston Region. The total resources of the Metropolitan Boston region are greater, but also the demands upon it will be greater. The decision is up to the local board of trustees.

Mrs. Chipman, local librarian attended the Andover meeting, and plans to attend the Metropolitan Boston meeting to be held at the Brookline Public Library later this month.

POSTOFFICE PROPOSAL FOR WILMINGTON SQUARE WINS SLIGHT ADVANTAGE

The Board of Selectmen, Monday night, tabled a question as to the best location, from their viewpoint, of a new Post Office which the government is proposing for Wilmington.
A building is to be constructed by a private party, and leased to the Post Office Department, according to a letter from Inspector H. J. O'Malley.

One site being considered is off Church St and near Olson Road, and the other is the southerly end of the Wilmington Plaza.

In the opinion of Selectman Nick De Felice the best site was that near Wilmington Square, but when he made a motion to this effect it was not seconded, Mr. Black not taking part in the discussion because of his connection with the Middlesex Bank, owners of the land, and Mr. Kidder preferring to 'look into the whole thing'.

Chairman Raymond Fitzmaurice, of the Planning Board, present at the meeting, while not making a site preference, said it should be 'oriented to Olson Road' if it were placed in the Square area.

Both the Selectmen and the Planning Board had a meeting several weeks ago with the Middlesex County Bank, relative to plans for the bank-owned land.

The board tabled the discussion until a future meeting

LOTS OF FISHERMEN - NO FISH

The boys were down at Jenks, Saturday morn-expensive lures, but without any luck. Nor one fish was caught there, all day, because of the high water. It had been stocked, the week previously, by the state.

COLLEGES DRAW $120 MILLION TO NEW ENGLAND

By Robert E. Stewart, President
Mechanics Savings Bank

The New Engl and Business Review in its latest issue comments on the immediate economic impact of higher education in New England' as follows:
'Higher education is an import and source of income in New England. Each year the regions colleges, universities and professional schools attract almost $120 million more into the region than people in New England pay for education in other parts of the country.
In the fall of 1958, New Engl and institutions of higher learning enrolled about 213, 000 students. Of this number, about 166,000 were full-time students - 143,000 undergraduates, and 23,000 graduate students. Nearly 53,000 full-time students came from outside the region. They accounted for about a third or more of full-time enrollment in each state except Maine and Rhode Island.

lished monthly by the Federal Re-

A surveyor or builder's error

rectified by the Board of Ap-

A survey made a few weeks ago revealed that the home of Mr

of Mr and Mrs Robert J. Cady, 21 Dorothy Avenue.

THE CIRCUS IS COMING

Wilmington Rotarians are to bring the Mills Brothers Circus to Wilmington this summer, President Ralph Swanson has announced.

The big three-ring circus is due on July 13th, for a one day stand, with the money going towards the Rotary Park Fund.

The big tent, 225 feet long and 125 feet wide, has a seating capacity of 3000, and there will be six other tents.

Tentative plans call for the circus to be located at the Rotary Park, a plan which was given a tentative approval by Wilmington's Selectmen Monday night.

Mills Bros. make one day stands, arriving in the morning, and leaving before daylight next day. The circus will be in Natick the day before, and in Danvers the day following.

GUILD BUILDING VALUATION STATED AT $700,000

The declared construction valuation of the Guild Plastic building, to be erected off Furlington Ave. is to be about $700,000, according to plans now being processed in the Town Hall.

Guild Plastics is planning a one story building, which will occupy 103,450 square feet, including a large warehouse for finished materials.

tion of land to the Jaquiths, could call the land on which their home stands, their own.

The Appeal Board granted the appeal, with the stipulation that a map be drawn showing the positions of both homes, for the Registry of Deeds.

FOOTBALL MEMENTO IS ERASED

Last fall enthusiastic but misguided fans smeared letters of their town in black paint on the front of our library.
Local civic-minded teenagers covered the unsightly sign with white paint, a real good-turn deed. The one freshly painted place, however, did call attention to the general condition of the paint. This month the whole library has been repainted professionally.

METHODIST MEN TO HEAR OUTSTANDING LEADER

At the regular meeting of the Methodist Men on Wednesday, April 26th at 6:30, the Rev. Daniel Whitsett, pastor of the Harvard Epworth Methodist Church in Cambridge will be the guest speaker. Mr. Woodsett is one of the outstanding leaders and speakers in the country today in the area of the christian responsibilities in race relations. Because of his stand on this problem he was forced to leave his previous parish in Alabama, and still is under extreme pressure from many factions in our country who oppose his position.

The pastor of the local Methodist Church, Rev. Richard Harding, has indicated that those who attend may not agree with everything that is said, but will not be disappointed in the courage of this leader in the Methodist Church.

METHODISTS HOLD SEMINAR ON FAIR HOUSING AND FAIR EMPLOYMENT

Entitled 'All Ten Are Brothers', the seminar was the third of four such seminars being held throughout the state this week. Wilmington was host for the Lynn district. A color movie, 'Broken Mask' was followed by a panel discussion and question period. Panel members were John Barclay (Moderator), coordinator of the Boston South End Methodist Parish, and Minister of Morgan Memorial Church of all Nations; Edward Cooper, Executive Secretary of the Mass NAACP; Luther Tyson, Chaplain of Industrial Relations of the Boston Area; and William Jones MIT and Harvard Research Scientist. The seminar was sponsored jointly by the Christian Social Concerns Commissions on the local, district, and conference levels.

EASY WAY

- ▲ Completely safe to use—applied cold no flammable solvents.
- ▲ Ideal for "do-it-yourself". No messy mixing necessary—Just open the container and apply.
- ▲ Restores blacktop to its original rich black color.
- ▲ Adds years of life to blacktop surfaces. Seals out destructive effects of weather checks harmful oxidation.
- ▲ Provides a hard, rugged surface—will not soften or track during excessive summer heat.

From the moment blacktop is laid, it is exposed to natural forces which try to destroy it. Rain . . . snow . . . blazing sun . . . break down its composition—chemical changes result in a drying out of the asphalt binder. Tiny cracks appear, and the blacktop is old . . . before its time.
